After Everything Was So Rudely Interrupted

Ann Haskins · Wednesday, October 13th, 2021

Dancing with umbrellas downtown, contemporary dance in Beverly Hills, modern ballet in Malibu and Costa Mesa, flamenco in Claremont, art installation dance in the Arts District, contemporary moves in a Corona del Mar garden, all live! Plus a dance festival for men, new dance films, dance classes, and more SoCal dance this week.

Live This Week

Delayed celebration

In fall 2019, the contemporary dance company BODYTRAFFIC was announced as the 2019-2010 resident company at the prestigious Wallis Theater, a triumphant coup for the LA-based company and indirectly for the vibrant local dance community seldom given the attention it deserves. The celebration and ambitious plans were interrupted by the onset of the Covid public health emergency and cancellation of live performances with the statewide closure in March 2020. After an 18-month interruption, theaters have reopened and The Wallis is making good on its original plans to showcase the company. Led by artistic director Tina Finkelman Berkett, BODYTRAFFIC brings four works including the company premiere of Recurrence, a duet choreographed by company member Ethan Colagelo. Also on tap, Dust with choreography by Hoffesh Shecter, PACOPEPEPLUTO from choreographer Alejandro Cerrudo, and choreographer Micaela Taylor's SNAP drawing on music by James Brown. The always top-notch dancers include Paige Borowski, Joseph Davis, Katie Garcia, Pedro Garcia, Alana Jones, Tiare Keeno, Lindsey Matheis, Tyeri Morrison, Joan Rodriguez, and Guzmàn Rosado. At the Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, Bram Goldsmith Theater, 9390 N. Santa Monica Blvd., Beverly Hills; Thurs.-Sat., Oct. 14-16, 7:30 pm, $39-$99. The Wallis.

“X” marks the spot

Based in Philadelphia, the highly acclaimed and always innovative Ballet X makes a rare SoCal visit with performances at two venues. Co-founded by Christine Cox who serves as artistic director and choreographer Matthew Neenan, the 16-year old company has a deserved reputation for its brilliant dancers and for presenting new choreography (its home studios aptly are called Center for World Premiere Choreography). More info, tickets & Covid protocols at the theaters’ website. At Smothers Theatre, Pepperdine University, 24255 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu; Thurs., Oct. 14, 8 p.m., $25-$50. SCFTA.

Amid the flora and fauna

With a commission from the Sherman Library and Gardens, choreographer Jennifer Backhaus and her Backhausdance have been creating a site-specific work in the lush gardens. The company hosts the final open rehearsals leading up to the outdoor performance. Sherman Library and Gardens, 2647 E. Coast Hwy., Corona del Mar; Open rehearsals-Thurs., Oct. 14 & Fri., Oct. 15, 10:30 am-1 pm, free. Performances-Sat., Oct. 16, 2 & 5:30 pm, (the free 2 pm show is sold out but accepting names for waiting list), 5:30 pm, $200 with additional pre-show option $50. Info on rehearsals, performance, tickets & Covid protocols at Sherman Library and Gardens.

Movin' indoors week by week

The 18th annual REDCAT New Original Works (NOW) Festival brings two more weeks of innovative dance and other performing arts to its stage. In Week 2, a mother, a father and a filmmaker inspired the three works. Choreographer Rosanna Tavaréz drew on scholarly research on the 1911 Triangle Shirtwaist Factory fire and her own mother's immigration experience. Eloquent Peasants' multi-media work muses on filmmaker Stanley Kubrick. Composer/songwriter Joshua Hill considers his father, singer Greg Hills who was recently diagnosed with dementia. The three artists in Week 3 found their starting points in melodramatic soap operas, hate crime victims, and Black social dance. Choreographer Jobel Medina translates soap operas into physical theater while Jasmine Orpilla focuses on hate crime survivors, and choreographer Amy O'Neal employs house and hip hop culture to explore social concepts of gender. Online viewing is an option for all Saturday shows. Live Week 2: Oct. 14-16, 8:30 pm, Live Week 3: Oct. 21-23, 8:30 pm, $20, $16 students.1 Online stream – Sat., Oct. 16 & 23, 8:30 p.m., $15, $12 students. Details on the artists, scheduled works, tickets, & Covid protocols at REDCAT.

From the small screen to the onstage screen

Employing shadowy silhouettes behind a screen, the dancers of Catapult promise to tell tales and along the way create real and imagined creatures. After becoming a finalist on tv's America's Got Talent, the ensemble launched a multi-state tour with stops at two local venues. Details on tickets, & Covid protocols at the website. At Lancaster Performing Arts Center, 750 W. Lancaster Blvd., Lancaster. Also at Smothers Theatre, Pepperdine University, 24255 Pacific Coast Highway, Malibu; Sat., Oct. 16, 7:30 pm, $22-$50. ## When tech dances

When the science geeks at MIT developed color-shifting LED lit umbrellas, then turned them over to Pilobolus and its crew of gymnastic modern dancemakers, the eventual result was UP! The Umbrella Project. The synergistic science/dance effort is a carefully choreographed event with participants armed with those umbrellas creating colorful patterns that light up the night. Pilobolus and those umbrellas arrive for six performances, two per night on each of three evenings. And the company is recruiting audience members to be participants in the choreography. Each show is limited to 100 participants with the colors, patterns, and shapes projected on screens in the venue's plaza. Be part of the spectacle or just come watch. Requirements to participate are on the website. At the Music Center, Jerry Moss Plaza, 135 N. Grand Ave., downtown; Thurs.-Sat., Oct. 22-24, 8 & 9:30 pm, $5. Music Center LA.

Post-modern rituals

Continuing its acquisition and exhibition of the work of post modern choreographers, the Getty Research Institute unveiled the first-ever retrospective of the work of choreographer and video artist Blondell Cummings: Dance as Moving Pictures. Known for translating everyday activities into dance movements, Cummings' work often focused on food, family, major life events, and daily life rituals, especially Black life. Initiated as part of the GRI's African American Art History Initiative, the exhibit includes videos, interviews, and photographs. On view at Art+Practice, 3401 W. 43rd Pl., Leimert Park; Wed.-Sat., noon-6 pm, to Feb. 19, 2022, free. Research guide at Getty Research Institute, Exhibition at Art+Practice.

Museum moves

Performance and dance are the metier of several artists in both of the Hammer Museum's big fall exhibits opening this week. Presented jointly with the Institute of Contemporary Art, Los Angeles (ICA LA), Witch Hunt surveys 16 artists focused on feminist, queer, and decolonial approaches to consider current and historical events. Among the artists who are movers look for Okwui Okpokwasili, Pauline Boudry & Renate Lorenz, and Beverly Semmes. The second opening, No Humans Involved, includes the performance duo Las Nietas de Nono. The exhibit's title draws on ideas of cultural theorist Sylvia Wynter whose panegyric writings advocated non-Western knowledge and spiritual practices. Exhibit info, tickets and Covid protocols at the website. UCLA Hammer Museum, 10899 Wilshire Blvd., Westwood; Tues.-Sun., 11 am – 6 pm to Jan. 22, 2022, free no reservation required. Hammer.

Broken, more beautiful in repair

As a practical technique, the Japanese mending method kintsugi involves reattaching pieces of broken pottery or porcelain then visibly coating the fracture with gold, often creating a gold veining effect on the repaired exterior. The “golden repair” as kintsugi is often translated, is also an artistic philosophy which the Japan America Cultural and Community Center commissioned five artists to explore in videos. JACC has now posted the results of The Kinsugi Spirit online including choreographer Jennifer Leung Johnson’s film capturing dancers Katy Dahl and Marina Hutchinson artistically finding the beauty in the broken and how to fill the spaces between. Free, online at JACCC.

Something for the men

SoCal troupes and choreographers are among this year’s participants in in the free, online 2021 Men in Dance Festival. Versa Style Dance Company contributed the video UnMaskulinity. The other SoCal participant, Alfonso Cevera of Primera Generacion Dance Collective, offers a solo work. Free online at Men In Dance Festival.

A myth resonates

Drawing a contemporary perspective on ancient Persian mythology, The Scarlet Stone (Moher-ye Sorkh) combines traditional and contemporary Persian dance, music and animation to find parallels between the myth and the 1979 Iranian Revolution along with its aftermath. The 80-minute film in Persian with English subtitles screens starting this week through the month of October. Fri.-Sun., thru Oct. 31, online at TIRGAN.

They're back with more

When theaters shuttered with the pandemic, dance and its audiences went online and began expanding the possibilities of dance on film. LA choreographer Jacob Jonas and his Jacob Jonas/The Company gathered artists from around the world to produce 15 original short dance films under the banner Films.Dance. In January 2021 the films started rolling out over four months, one each Monday, all free. The project earned boasting rights as many of those films went on to win awards at other film festivals. This week begins Films.Dance Round Two, again with dance, dancers, and filmmakers from around the world. The original films, a preview, and e-mail sign up for free weekly film delivery at Films.Dance.

Online Dance Classes

Not quite ready for class in person?

On-line dance classes continue on zoom, instagram, other on-line platforms, and increasingly in person. Many classes free, low cost or suggesting a donation. One central, constantly updated source on dance classes and in-depth reporting on SoCal dance, LA Dance Chronicle lists on-line dance classes including any cost and contact info. Grab a chair or clear off a corner of the room and use this time to dance. LA Dance Chronicle..
