Areas Where the Assistance of a Newark Drunk Driving Accident Lawyer is Essential

Our Friends · Wednesday, August 28th, 2024

You see, when a drunk driving accident occurs in Newark, the stakes are high. The city has a zero-tolerance attitude toward drunk driving, and the penalties can be severe.

But what does that mean for you? As the victim of a drunk driving accident, navigating the aftermath requires more than just basic knowledge—it requires a deep, thorough understanding of Newark's legal environment.

The only people who have this kind of deep understanding are Newark drunk driving accident attorneys. They will use their expertise to make sure to take advantage of the evidence in hand. They also speak to the police on your behalf and protect your rights from the very beginning.

For instance, if you're injured and can't give a statement, your lawyer can ensure that nothing is said or done that could harm your case later on.

Here are some more areas of a DWI claim where a lawyer's assistance is essential.

Establishing Liability In A Drunk Driving Accident

When it comes to who caused the accident, things aren't always clear-cut. Sure, if the other driver was drunk, it might seem obvious they were at fault. But sometimes, other factors come into play. Maybe there were issues with the road, like poor lighting or confusing signs, which can be common in a busy city like Newark.

A lawyer can help sort this out. They'll look into everything, from police reports to what witnesses saw.

For example, if the accident happened around Broad Street or near a busy intersection, your lawyer might check for nearby security cameras that captured what happened. They'll make sure every detail is examined so it's clear who is really responsible for the crash.

The four elements of personal injury law come into play when establishing negligence. The victim has to prove that the at-fault party had a duty of care, breached that duty of care, and caused the accident that hurt them. Trying to prove all this while being injured is an uphill task. But that's not the case with a drunk driving attorney. They'll take care of all the complications, allowing you to focus on your recovery.

Dealing with Newark's Insurance Companies

Insurance companies often try to pay as little as possible, even if you're the one hurt. They might offer a settlement that doesn't cover all your costs.

We all know how high expenses and the overall cost of living in Newark are, which is why it is especially important that you, as the victim, get enough to cover everything, from medical bills to lost wages.

A Newark lawyer knows how to handle insurance companies. They'll take over negotiations and make sure your needs are fully met. If you're facing high medical costs, your lawyer will push for a fair settlement that covers all your expenses.

They'll make sure you don't get shortchanged and that all your financial needs are taken into account. This includes non-tangible losses like pain and suffering and loss of enjoyment of life.

Covering Medical Costs Related to Drunk Driving

After a drunk driving accident, your medical bills can quickly add up. You might need immediate treatment, ongoing therapy, or even long-term care. This can be a big worry in Newark, where medical costs can be high.

A lawyer will help you with these expenses. They'll work to get all your medical costs covered, not just the immediate ones but also future expenses.

If you need physical therapy or regular doctor visits, your lawyer will make sure these are included in your claim. They'll fight to ensure you don't end up with bills you can't afford.

Court Trials

There are chances that the insurance company may not agree with the fair compensation your lawyer demands. In such instances, the drunk driving case moves to court, where it is a completely different ball game.

The challenges in court are numerous, ranging from timely filing of essential documents to trying to convince the jury using strong arguments. Try to get through all this without the assistance of an experienced drunk driving lawyer is impossible.
