Complicated Topography

Ann Haskins · Wednesday, December 4th, 2024

Scientists weigh in on a dance about a scientist; memories evoked in Beverly Hills; twisty dancers in Long Beach; beloved novel and a folklore threat get their own ballets in Hancock Park and West LA; contemporary dance in Culver City and downtown; last chance for Kabuki-infused Sondheim in Little Tokyo; more SoCal dance including Nutcracker ballets this busy week, and a peek at next week.

Building memories

A scent, a song, a warm breeze can stir a memory, a sensory relationship the contemporary company BODYTRAFFIC explores this season under the banner This Reminds Me of You. The company returns with three premieres to one of its most frequent venues. Inspired by the work of the late Black Angeleno visual artist, Ernie Barnes, Juel D. Lane's Incense Burning On A Saturday Morning: The Maestro receives its full world premiere. The two West Coast premieres are Matthew Neenan's I Forgot the Start with a playlist that includes music by Sinéad O'Connor, and new artistic associate Trey McIntyre's Mayday set to rock legend Buddy Holly songs. The Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts, 9390 N. Santa Monica Blvd., Beverly Hills; Fri., Dec. 6, 7:30 pm, Sat., Dec. 7, 2 & 7:30 pm, $49-$79. The Wallis.

Twisty turnings

Making appearances at two SoCal venues, the ever-inventive Pilobolus returns with its signature blend of dance and gymnastics to tell evocative stories. This visit brings re:CREATION with beloved company classics like Walklyndon, Bloodlines, and Rushes, plus a new work, Tales from the Underworld. Carpenter Performing Arts Center, Cal State University Long Beach, 6200 E. Atherton St., Long Beach; Sat., Dec. 7, 8 pm, $55. Carpenter PAC. Also at Smothers Theater, Pepperdine University, 24255 Pacific Coast Hwy., Malibu; Sun., Dec. 8, 7 pm, $28-$58. Pepperdine University.

The scientists weigh in

Years before Benedict Cumberbatch's film portrayal raised the public profile of British mathematician Alan Turing, he had grabbed the attention of choreographer and Invertigo Dance Theatre artistic director Laura Karlin. She was fascinated by the man responsible for breaking the Nazi's enigma code, father of computer technology whose work was so secret he received no credit during his lifetime which ended tragically in suicide with a poisoned apple, a choice Karlin linked to Turing's obsessive fondness for Disney's Snow White. In the type of 'collision of art and science' promised by the Getty-sponsored PST series, excerpts from Karlin's highly praised result will be performed, followed by discussion of Turing's life and work by CalTech scientists in a program dubbed Turing Tests, Apples, and Queens. California Institute of Technology, 1200 E. California Blvd., Pasadena; Fri.-Sat., Dec. 6-7, 8 pm, $30-$40, $10 students w/i.d. Caltech.

A novel approach

After three highly successful, site-specific performances of their ballet version of Louisa May Alcott's beloved novel Little Women, choreographer Emma Andres and the dancers move from the stately Victorian mansions of Heritage Square to a proscenium theater for the full-length Little Women Ballet. Wilshire Ebell Theatre, 4401 W. 8th St., Hancock Park; Sat., Dec. 7, 2:30 & 7 pm, $28-$40. Little Women Ballet.

Convoy Studios, 3764 Glendon Ave., West LA; Fri.-Sat., Dec. 6-7, 7:30 pm, Sun., Dec. 8, 3 pm, $53.65 -$90.41. Tickets.

An extended overture

When East West Players chose Stephen Sondheim's Pacific Overtures for the 50th anniversary of the show's Broadway premiere, it also lured back former artistic director Tim Dang who directed the show when EWP moved to its current mid-sized theater in Little Tokyo. Dang not only brings a background in dance, he brought in three additional choreographers, Broadway dancer/choreographer Yuka Takara, Kabuki consultant Kirk Kanesaka (aka Ganky? Nakamura), and fight director Amanda Noriko Newman. The show continues EWP long history presenting Sondheim in a theater sized to allow audiences to see the full show and still hear every precious lyric.
