

Cultural Daily

Independent Voices, New Perspectives

Diana Raab: Four Poems

Diana Raab · Wednesday, October 15th, 2014

Diana Raab is an award-winning memoirist, poet, and blogger, and author of eight books, including four poetry collections. Her work has appeared in over 500 publications. She teaches writing for healing around the country and is widely published in national trade and literary magazines. Her latest poetry collection is Lust. She is regular blogger for Huff50 and for BrainSpeak.

Pick Up

it wasn't your offer
or the way you said it.
it wasn't the way you did it or how it made me feel.
it wasn't the time of day or the month or the year or the shape of the moon caressing us or how the sun rose when you smiled.
it wasn't how the traffic zipped on the freeway or how you said good-bye it was just about the way you loved me and cared enough to ask.

Leashed

She has put you,
my master, on a short leash but it really should be the other way around me on the leash as you hold me between the space in your two front teeth beside your rapidly rotating tongue bringing euphoric bliss to each female part of me.

If you were on my leash it would look like you ordering me where to go and what to do who to kiss and who to miss.

By now, you should know, how much I prefer when you are the one in charge.

Coping

People ask
how does one cope
when your loved one clicks their heels and decides to walk out the door for some old fashioned sex with a stranger yet to be met, and what I tell them is I create my own affair between me and my computer composing descriptive erotic words of my last time with someone who wanted me
in every sense of the six-letter word.

Younger Man and Older Woman

My mind is busy touching you in places you've never been touched as you are too young to understand the desires of an older woman who yearns for young flesh, responsive parts wanting every part of her during every breathing moment—

I cannot be patient glancing at your muscles, the ones sculpted from the waves which engulf you—tell me you want me and I promise to give you everything you need whenever you want and even if I need to be on the moon to pick up a dozen eggs or the pharmacy to fetch protection plastic sheaths which will only bring us that much closer.

This entry was posted on Wednesday, October 15th, 2014 at 2:31 pm and is filed under Poetry.
You can follow any responses to this entry through the Comments \(RSS\) feed. You can leave a response, or trackback from your own site.