Cultural Daily

Independent Voices, New Perspectives

Encounter point with a child of the city ... an image, a poem.

Maurice Amiel · Wednesday, June 21st, 2017

Ι

The child of the city between guns' echoes sifts sand and laps at the water with thirsty roots that stop at the concrete edge the market voices people the earth and irridescent substance surrounds the child

come steel seasons

of bird cages and

circus

come soul seasons

of roses and

earth

come the painful season

of changing flesh

of mute screams and

soft echoes

II

The child of the city

betwee guns echoes

sifts sand and laps at the water with roots that cling to the concrete edge

while tender calls

pass by

in leaded seasons of thought and

blurred images

III

The child of the cities

sees the circus of gold

the tent of blood

the rusty avenues

the awnings of flesh

the I that sees him.

[alert type=alert-white]Please consider making a tax-deductible donation now so we can keep publishing strong creative voices.[/alert]

Credit image Maurice Amiel ... at Le Festin Royal, Montreal.

This entry was posted on Wednesday, June 21st, 2017 at 7:44 pm and is filed under Architecture, Poetry, Discourse

You can follow any responses to this entry through the Comments (RSS) feed. You can skip to the end and leave a response. Pinging is currently not allowed.