

Cultural Daily

Independent Voices, New Perspectives

Five cool things to do in Ireland

Our Friends · Wednesday, April 6th, 2022

Ireland is one of the top tourist destinations in the world, with many from all over the globe continually flocking to The Emerald Isle.

Many will want to visit the country as they want to experience some of the cultures that have been made popular in various forms of media entertainment, whilst others will want to try and enjoy certain elements of cuisine that are on offer, with the country known for certain food and drink products. Another popular reason for visiting the small nation is because many have ancestry that is from the Isle, therefore many go looking to experience where previous generations of their family have come from.

Regardless of the reason to visit Ireland, it is perhaps wise to go and visit one of the endless attractions that the country has to offer, with picturesque scenes and plenty of history on offer, as well as some of the very best cultural experiences and the ability to enjoy some of the best nightlife that can be found anywhere in the world.

Let's explore just five of the coolest things to do whilst in Ireland, though, otherwise, we could be writing an article that never ends!

1. The Westbury Casino

Although there will have been many using the best online casino operator in Ireland prior to their visit to The Emerald Isle, those that enjoy a gambler and enjoy a wide range of games to choose from should visit Dublin and head to The Westbury Casino that is located within the capital.

The venue provides gamers with the chance to play the vast majority of different games that they could hope to, with classic table games including roulette, poker and blackjack to video slots all available to enjoy!

2. Cliffs of Moher

The Cliffs of Moher are one of the top Irish tourist attractions, with millions of people continually visiting them each and every year. They provide a truly breathtaking visual experience and one that is hard to see anywhere else in the world.

The Cliffs of Moher are used in various forms of media, thus making it likely that they have been seen before, but to actually see them in the flesh is a real joy. They stretch for 8km, though, so make sure you are prepared to walk!

3. Blarney Castle and the Blarney Stone

The legend states that those who kiss the Blarney Stone are gifted with eloquence and persuasiveness and it is a tradition that many around the world will be familiar with. Indeed, it has been in existence for centuries and many from all corners of the planet make sure they do it when they are in Ireland.

However, the Blarney Castle is a top attraction in its own right and is over 600 years old that features a collection of gardens that can be explored, as can the dungeons and towers that are part of the castle itself.

4. Guinness Storehouse

Have you really been to Ireland if you have not been to the Guinness Storehouse and poured yourself your own pint of Ireland's most famous export? That is what some will be asking you if you do not visit it!

The brewery has become a famous hotspot for many who visit the country, with many taking the opportunity to witness how the iconic beverage is made and how things come together, whilst also learning all about the history before getting to the end where they get to pour their own pint!

5. Newgrange in County Meath

For those who really want to experience the history that Ireland truly has to offer, then they might want to go and visit the archaeological site of Newgrange, which is in County Meath.

This site is one of the oldest in the world, as it dates to approximately the New Stone Age – which is around 3,200BCE – and is understood to be older than the Egyptian pyramids that exist.

Those that manage to visit during the winter solstice will be able to enjoy the fact that the chamber will be filled with sunlight via the roof box that is located above the entrance.

Photo by Sylvia Szekely on Unsplash

This entry was posted on Wednesday, April 6th, 2022 at 9:50 am and is filed under Check This Out. You can follow any responses to this entry through the Comments \(RSS\) feed. Both comments and pings are currently closed.