Our Friends · Tuesday, January 26th, 2021

If you don't know what a turnkey software solution is, it's practically a product already built by another company and ready to use by the company that purchases it. The beauty of a turnkey solution is that you won't have to spend time making your own or bothering with having another company customize a solution completely.

Instead, you get something that was already made from the ground up and you get to use it ASAP. No fuss, no briefings, no other headaches. With that said, there are plenty of advantages in using a turnkey software solution. Let's get to the nitty gritty of it and find out if it's the right thing for your business.

Easy and Fast Implementation

Like we said earlier, you won't have to bother with customizing and adapting anything. Turnkey solutions are made from the ground up to simply work. The system will have an amalgamation of different features from billing, accounting, website design, or even content management. It all depends on the type of turnkey solution you're looking for and how your business operates.

Technical Know-How? Nah

Do you find yourself struggling with technical stuff that's a little more advanced than using common apps? Then lucky you, a turnkey software solution is there to help you do your thing without a lot of technical mumbo-jumbo.

This comes with the added benefit of saving you time and stress caused by having to rely on the dev team or on technical support agents more than it should be necessary. Speaking of which:

Constant Updates and Upgrades

Do you often struggle installing major updates on your own? Well, a turnkey solution is provisioned with constant updates and upgrades in such a way that you don't need to be a technical mastermind. Updates include security patches, which offer you even greater protection against hackers.

Yes, hackers always find new methods of penetrating firewalls and other barriers on a daily basis. So these updates benefit you greatly and make your business even more secure than before.

Furthermore, upgrade packages may contain several new features that a regular update may not.

Tried and Tested Strategy

While a turnkey solution might not offer the same level of customizability as a white label solution, it offers something that has most likely stood the test of time. Turnkey solutions from famous providers often have a mountain of case studies and reviews for their product so you can decide on your own which one is right for you.

A great example is turnkey online poker solution from BetConstruct, which offers just about every mode imaginable of the classic card game. Similarly, there are plenty of great vendors for other types of turnkey software out there. You just have to seek them out, read reviews about their offerings, and try out their solution before buying.

The Bottom Line

In conclusion, using a turnkey software solution is the best option for your business if you want a no-hassle experience. This is especially true if you're just starting out and want something affordable to help you on your way.
