Kickstart This: Echo Chamber

Chiwan Choi · Wednesday, June 25th, 2014

A project truly worth Kickstarting.

The powerhouse that is Rhea Tepp, co-founder/organizer of LA Zine Fest among other things, and Sarah Cisco, the writer, creator, and star of Trash/Smash, are planning to open a fully collaborative headquarters for the L.A. independent art and music community aimed at creation, experimentation & storytelling in Echo Park.

Echo Chamber will exist for three months beginning July 2014, in the building once occupied by Echo Curio. The Curio was a beloved space to the local creative community, ourselves included, which is why we are excited to continue its legacy through the reinvention of a new space.

What will they be doing at Echo Chamber Creative HQ? Well:

ECHO CHAMBER WILL BE A:

- *Headquarters for creative collaboration.
- *Open studio space showcasing local artists' work.
- *Resource center for writers, zinesters and illustrators to collaborate with crafters, musicians, comedians, and creative locals.
- *Home of the L.A. Zine Fest zine library.
- *Opportunity for zine makers to reproduce their work on a RISO RC 6300 photocopy machine.
- *Boutique for independent creators & designers.
- *Set of a talk show interviewing local bands, writers, and artists.
- *Satellite broadcast station for KXLU 88.9FM.
- *Book/zine club meeting space.
- *Place for skill-sharing workshops.
- *Home of a public storytelling booth installation.

BUT THERE IS ONLY 1 WEEK LEFT! ENDS JULY 3!! GO!
