Nation Watch: February 16, 2017

Jessica Ceballos Campbell · Wednesday, February 15th, 2017

As social actions around the world demonstrate, the people listen, the streets listen. A vast, strong community seeks a world of greater compassion and justice. Politicians listen too, when there are enough people in real and virtual streets.

Cultural Weekly's Nation Watch highlights topics you may wish to take action on. We also wish to alert you to DCReport, a new website dedicated to investigative journalism of what the President and Congress do, not what they say, founded by Pulitzer Prize-winning reporter David Cay Johnston.

Crime

The President signed three executive orders aimed at fighting crime. One relates to strengthening federal laws aimed at reducing international crime organizations like drug cartels. The second “focuses on preventing crime against law enforcement, including a push to define new federal crimes and potentially establish new mandatory minimum sentences.” The third order gives Attorney General Sessions the power to develop strategies “to reduce crime, including, in particular, illegal immigration, drug trafficking, and violent crime.” Source: The Hill

Health Care
