Ann Haskins · Wednesday, August 24th, 2022

Dancing with concrete in West Hollywood, relocated contemporary in Culver City, all female, all flamenco in East LA, new choreography downtown, nine companies span the dance spectrum in Riverside, a family fest in Watts, more SoCal dance this week and a peek at next week.

Live This Week

Rituals

Week two of this year's REDCAT NOW Festival brings two dance works plus an inventive opera. This annual curated reveal of new work is often an early look at promising explorations. For his solo Novena, choreographer Jay Carlon draws on his Filipino heritage as well as Bisaya rituals for grieving and healing from the southern Philippines. The contemporary troupe szalt led by choreographer Stephanie Zaletel explores foundational motor actions and intuitive choreography in 5 basic movements (vagus except). Joe Diebes brings his experimental opera Eng to the stage. More on the artists and the festival at the website. REDCAT, 631 W. 2nd St., downtown; Thurs.-Sat., Aug. 25-27, 8:30pm, $20, $16 students. REDCAT.

Finale for a fest

The closing weekend of REDCAT NOW Festival Week #3 offers three highly theatrical takes on subjects ranging from Sarahjeen François' exploration of the African tradition of hair braiding to Sara Lyons consideration of feminist histories. In their portion, The Rock Collection (Erik Speth, Sarri, Sanchez, Arletta Anderson, Finn Murphy, Jamar Morris, and Nguy?n Nguyễn) manipulate light to create a dance landscape that bathes their bodies in light and darkness in Fault/Lines. More on the artists and the festival at the website. REDCAT, 631 W. 2nd St., downtown; Thurs.-Sat., Sept.1-3, 8:30pm, $20, $16 students. REDCAT.

Moving momentum

Due to last minute venue difficulties, the performance of MashUp Contemporary Dance Company's Power was moved back one day and relocated to a new venue. The work reflects consideration of various concepts of power from the perspective of the company's quartet of female leaders. Clearly resilience and making things work in the face of adversity is one way to demonstrate power, or at least the power to overcome unanticipated obstacles and circumstances. Musician's Choice Studios, 3820 Hoke Ave., Culver City; Fri., Aug. 26, 7:30pm, $30. Eventbrite.
