

Cultural Daily

Independent Voices, New Perspectives

Seb Doubinsky: ten non-haikus

Sébastien Doubinsky · Wednesday, March 13th, 2013

Seb Doubinsky has had his work published in various international magazines, zines and online poetry sites. He currently lives in Århus, Denmark, with his wife and his two children. These non-haikus by Seb Doubinsky is his American publication debut.

ten non-haikus

1.

drizzle drizzle drizzle taking the kids to school head empty of all thoughts
-fatherhood

2.

flash-floods in the night
– 20 000 lightnings
but no illumination

3.

to stut
ter
is to be come
lan guage

4.

what we think we remember:
a book a film a kiss a girl a boy what we actually remember:
ourselves
remembering

5.

spontaneity is key
– the cat yawns
and jumps on the kitchen table

6.

watching tv without watching breathing without thinking – winter has settled in 7.

the homeless man
takes off his coat
and puts it next to him on the pavement
-spring

8.

summer is the season of perspectives will it rain? will you love me forever?

9.

a bird flies
into a cloud
-I disappear

10.

in the bus
the prof reads his book the poet looks at the landscape
-both working

This entry was posted on Wednesday, March 13th, 2013 at 8:50 pm and is filed under Poetry.
You can follow any responses to this entry through the Comments \(RSS\) feed. You can leave a response, or trackback from your own site.