Siberian Percussionists Harmonize With Ice

Adam · Thursday, March 7th, 2013

Lake Baikal, located in Siberia, is the deepest and most voluminous fresh water lake in the world. It's where Irkutsk ethnic percussion group Ethnobeat found a spot where the ice harmonizes perfectly. We particularly love the moment at 2:01 when a sheet of cascading ice punctuates the rhythm and shows the mastery of these Siberian percussionists.
