The Best Sites to Find Someone Online

Our Friends · Monday, December 12th, 2022

Luckily, there are many sites that can help you find someone online. Some are free, while others cost a few bucks. Here are a few of them.

Intelius

Using Intelius, a company that specializes in providing background check and reverse phone lookup services is a smart way to learn more about a potential new love interest or find out the name of an unknown person. However, many customers have complained about the company's unhelpful customer support and inaccurate information.

The first thing you need to do is set up an account. After doing that, you can search the directory for someone. You can search by name, address, phone number, or city.

There are several different Intelius products, ranging from a free search to a Premiere Plus report that includes educational, employment, and social media histories. You can also request a criminal report.

When you request a criminal report, you will be able to learn more about the person's criminal history. The report can include a state criminal check, public records, bankruptcy information, and other details.

Instant Checkmate

Using an online background check can be a useful way to research information about potential dates, co-workers and friends. There are many services available, but Instant Checkmate is one of the better options.

Instant Checkmate is more than just a background check service. It also features dating profiles and social media profiles. In addition, it collects data from public and private forums to improve its database.

It also offers email addresses and phone numbers. This is particularly useful for people who use classified websites. In addition, it offers criminal and felony offense records.

Instant Checkmate has a streamlined design, making it easy to navigate its different sections. Unlike other services, it only requires a few pieces of information to perform a search. It also has a nice FAQ section to answer the most common questions.

Free People Search

Free People Search, or FPS, is a great way to find out about people without having to spend money. As the name implies, it's free and provides a range of search results for people.

FPS searches include both the public and private Internet and can return information such as residential addresses, phone numbers, criminal records, marriages, divorces, driving records, social media profiles, and more. It also offers reverse phone number lookup services that can help you identify unknown callers.

With FPS, you don't need to pay anything to use the service. The only downside is that its database isn't as comprehensive as some paid-for services like Intelius or Instant Checkmate.

BeenVerified

Founded in 2007, BeenVerified is a public records search engine. The company is based in New York City. It provides affordable access to public records. It uses data from dozens of sources to create detailed reports about individuals.

The company specializes in people search and provides easy-to-read reports. It also provides users with access to social media accounts. BeenVerified also offers a court-runner service, which helps users find information on court documents.

The service costs $18 per month if you pay in advance. There is a five-day free trial. You can also call BeenVerified's customer service line, which starts at 6am ET and goes until 11:30 pm ET. The company also offers live support on Sunday and Saturday from 10 am to 8 pm ET.

BeenVerified provides access to public records, which means you can find out who owns property in your area or if a specific email address is valid. BeenVerified also checks the legitimacy of unknown phone numbers. It even searches for court proceedings and litigation history.

TruthFinder

Among the many ways to track someone online, TruthFinder is one of the most versatile tools. The site provides you with a variety of features, including a search bar that lets you type in a name, age, and location. It can also perform a reverse phone lookup.

The site also offers a live chat feature where you can speak with a customer service agent. The service is available between 7 am and 7 pm Pacific Time. The team behind the site is knowledgeable and passionate. They have a dedicated FAQ section for any questions you may have.

TruthFinder is also capable of running full background checks on you. The reports can be requested in PDF form. They follow the Fair Credit Reporting Act. The website is encrypted to ensure that your data is safe.

Spokeo

Founded in 2006, Spokeo has over 18 million users. Its search engine trawls through the Internet for personal information and public records.

The information provided by Spokeo comes from over twelve billion public records. It includes criminal records, social media profiles, online shopping accounts, and even blog posts. It is also useful for finding old friends.

Spokeo also offers a free account. However, you can get more information for a fee. If you decide to sign up for the service, you'll get notifications whenever information on a person is updated. In order to use this feature, you'll need to upload a list of contacts.
