Our Friends · Thursday, January 22nd, 2026

If you want to date a transgender person or you're a transgender person who recently had female to male bottom surgery and is looking to try online dating, we've got all the dating websites you need to find trans singles for meaningful connections and more.

Ready to become one of the success stories? We've got everything you need to have an amazing dating experience with other trans individuals, non binary people, and members of the lgbtq community in secure environments where you can date safely.

Let's find your life partner and a welcoming community so you can start dating other members of the trans community in just a few clicks!

Transgender Dating Sites for the Trans Community with Fellow Trans Women and Men

In all our welcoming spaces in this article, all our members are aiming for respectful interactions in just a few clicks. Not all transgender experiences are positive, so it's important to us that we present you with secure environments and judgment free environments to be your true self in.

Some of these transgender dating sites are more transgender community sites than trans dating apps, so you'll find people willing to discuss pre op treatments, dating trans oriented men, and other aspects of the dating world that only a fellow trans person could understand.

We think some of the best transgender dating apps allow transgender people to come together in the dating world and discuss things that other dating sites wouldn't consider relevant. Transgender members should be allowed to chat about gender identity, their dating experiences, and success stories from other trans women and men, as well as the awkward third date they had last month.

Finding transgender men and trans girls online with the same interests who want to chat about more than just TS dating is what makes some of the transgender dating apps on our list so invaluable. Transgender people are even creating their own transgender dating apps where they can filter out trans oriented men or help tackle the issues many transgender women face.

Many of these projects are funded by premium membership prices; however, not all premium membership fees go to the development of TS dating platforms, as some go towards helping transgender users in need, too.

Dating Websites for Trans Attracted Singles

Amongst the success stories, you'll find tales of TS dating where trans men and transgender women have found love with non trans people on TS dating sites.

Not all transgender dating sites are just for LGBTQ+ people, which is obviously something you need to explore if you're downloading a trans dating app.

Best Dating Sites for Trans Singles

Whether you're seeking a long term relationship, looking at dating trans women, or trying to find the best trans dating sites for a serious relationship with queer women, we've got all the TS dating sites you need to have an amazing trans dating experience.

Let's find the best trans dating site for you and compare them to other transgender dating sites so you don't have to. Here are the best TS dating sites you can try!

1. Taimi

If you're hoping to meet transgender people, or you're a trans man or woman looking for a genuine connection, Taimi is home to one of the largest and most engaged trans communities online. For people interested in meaningful trans dating, the platform offers far more than surface-level matches.

When it comes to trans-focused dating apps, Taimi truly delivers. With an incredibly active user base of trans women, trans men, and gender-diverse people, you'll find stacks of potential matches plus features like video calls, group chats, and social spaces that take the whole experience far beyond basic swiping.

You can choose from a wide range of gender identities when setting up your free profile, and although upgrades exist, the free version still lets you video chat and message your matches without restriction, a huge plus for trans women and men navigating online trans dating safely.

Safety is also a massive priority. Taimi offers profile verification to help protect every trans person, and it's become a global hub where trans women and men connect, organize local meetups, and talk about topics only the community truly understands.

If you're searching for the best dating platform for transgender women and men, Taimi deserves the top spot. For inclusive, respectful, and intentional trans dating, it sets the standard.

2. OkCupid

Although it's technically a mainstream dating app, OkCupid has been proudly inclusive since 2014, including for trans women. With more than 60 gender options and a famously open-minded user base, it's an excellent space for trans people who want a broad dating pool rather than a niche community.

Activity levels vary depending on your location; some areas are buzzing, others a bit quieter, but it's completely free to join this trans dating app, so there's no harm in giving it a go. If you want flexibility, variety, and a platform that genuinely respects gender diversity, OkCupid is absolutely worth exploring for all trans women out there.

3. FreshSingle

For those seeking a straightforward, no-cost alternative, freshsingle.com stands out as a completely free dating site that welcomes transgender singles alongside the broader LGBTQ+ community. Unlike many platforms that lock core features behind paywalls, freshSingle offers full access to messaging, live chat, profile searching, and flirting at no charge, making it an accessible entry point for trans women, trans men, and allies looking for meaningful connections without financial pressure.

There are hand-checked personals and safety-focused filters, allowing users to connect in a judgment-free space where they can be themselves. While it's a general dating site rather than a trans-exclusive one, its inclusive environment and lack of premium barriers have made it a practical option for trans individuals exploring online dating affordably. If you're tired of swipe fatigue or restricted free tiers on other apps, this free dating site provides a refreshing, budget-friendly way to meet potential partners who value genuine interaction.

4. HER

This one's exclusively for queer women, but it's wonderfully welcoming to trans women. If you're a trans woman who prefers an environment without men, HER provides a women-only space where you can chat, video call, and meet both gay and trans women with zero fuss and non cisgender men.

It won't suit every trans woman; some prefer mixed-gender platforms, but for those wanting a safe, female-centred community, HER can be a total breath of fresh air. If you identify as female, definitely take a look, even if it's not open to the entire trans spectrum.

HER is a solid dating app that really helps keep trans women safe. It's a popular dating site even outside of trans people, as it's free to join and keeps women safe, something not many dating sites can say!

5. Zoosk

If you'd like a transgender dating site that goes beyond endless swiping, Zoosk could be a fun option. It isn't dedicated solely to transgender dating, but the user base is extremely open, letting trans women, trans men, and non-binary people connect with matches around the world in dozens of languages.

You're able to tailor which profiles you see, so filtering out traits you're not interested in is simple. The main downside? The price. Some users find Zoosk a little too expensive for what it offers, but if you're after international connections and lots of variety, it might be right up your street for easy trans dating.

5. Translr

This trans dating app offers personalised matches based on your interests, which is a standout feature when so many platforms simply throw random profiles your way. It's inclusive, friendly, and offers verification layers designed to keep everyone safe.

Some users have found the ID checks a bit tricky, especially when their documents don't align perfectly with their gender identity (not ideal for a trans dating site), but overall, Translr has a reputation for being supportive, warm, and great for building friendships as well as romantic connections for transgender women and men around the world.

6. Bindr

Hugely popular within the trans community, Bindr is vibrant, inclusive, and completely free for trans dating. The trans dating platform has a warm, welcoming vibe, and many people use it to find friendships as much as romance, so don't be surprised if not everyone is looking for dates.

That said, you should browse with caution: some users have reported fake profiles, and a few have spotted accounts created by people under 16. Still, the community continues to grow, and for free access to a trans-friendly space, Bindr can be a solid starting point.

It's a fairly solid trans dating site where transgender women and men are respected whilst being allowed to explore other trans people free from judgment.

Taimi is the Best for Transgender Community and More

For amazing safety measures, a supportive environment of like minded individuals, and tons of potential matches that bring you closer to a long term relationship with that special person, Taimi comes out on top!

Taimi understands the unique challenges that come with finding a transgender relationship through online dating, and they've worked hard to create the best trans dating experience possible so you can make meaningful connections that align with your dating preferences more easily than ever.

Regardless of sexual orientation, you can become one of the success stories like loads of trans daters before you! Download Taimi for free today and start meeting trans people!
